

Uncertain times in university recruitment and admissions: protecting the future supply of graduate engineers

The Engineering Professors' Council invites you to its

Annual Recruitment and Admissions Forum

7 November 2012: 10:00-15:00

This is an opportunity to debate the issues for engineering departments with colleagues, hear from the British Council about what overseas applicants are thinking and get a private provider's perspective. We'll also be holding a workshop session to capture some ideas and best practice on ensuring we are continuing to get the message out about engineering as a degree choice that opens many doors to future employment.

Who should attend:

Admissions Tutors for Engineering programmes
Directors of International Offices
Heads of Admissions
Science Outreach officers
Anyone with responsibility for recruiting and admitting engineering students

Venue: Royal Academy of Engineering
3 Carlton House Terrace, London SW1Y 5DG

Registration fee:

£60 (non members)/£50* (members)
*20% members' discount for multiple bookings from same institution

For bookings:

<http://epc.ac.uk/events/admissions-tutors-forum/>

Speakers include:

Jack Grove, Times Higher Education's reporter on student affairs and access to HE

Steve Harvey, Managing Director, Cambridge Education

Kevin Van-Cauter, British Council

Professor Dik Morling, University of Westminster

Jeremy Buckle, Event Director, Big Bang Education

epc.ac.uk

Follow us: #epc1994

