

ENGINEERING ETHICS CONFERENCE

Thursday 6 September 2018, University of Leeds

Bringing engineering ethics to life in education, professional development and industry

This interactive and engaging national conference looks at some of the big ethical challenges facing engineering today and in the future, and how engineers can tackle them. It brings together decision makers from industry, higher education, regulators and professional engineering institutions. Through questions, discussion and use of technology, delegates will have the opportunity to offer their views and to shape a 10 year vision.

Creating a 10 year vision for embedding ethical principles:
your opportunity to be part of the process.

REGISTER HERE: www.idea.leeds.ac.uk/engethics2018
#EngEthics2018

Supported by:

