

ICE President's Apprentice Reflection

Yan Zhou

Yan.Zhou@Jacobs.com

ACED Conference 9 May 2018

Biography

Yan is a graduate of Tongji University and of Imperial College for his MSc in Structural Steel Design. He is a technical Director of Jacobs, where he has worked on a number of highways schemes. Previously he worked on structural design for the offshore oil and gas industry in a series of leading companies. Yan was an ICE President's Apprentice in 2011/12 for president Richard Coackley. He is the honorary secretary of ICE London Regional Committee and the incoming chairman of Hong Kong Institution of Engineers (HKIE) UK chapter.

Yan is open to opportunities to give talks in universities to promote the ICE President's Apprentice Scheme. Please contact yan.zhou@Jacobs.com

1

Be Proud of The Profession

2

Communication Is Essential

3

Keep Learning For Life

What (I Think) Universities Could Do

- Motivate - Invite “celebrities” to give talks
- Encourage - Practice communication wherever possible
- Action - Start the CPD before careers begin